Results

Your personal score tells how much your employer lives up to national legal standards regarding work. To calculate your DecentWorkCheck, you must accumulate 1 point for each YES answer marked. Then compare it with the values in Table below:

is your amount of "YES" accumulated.

Qatar scored 35 times "YES" on 49 questions related to International Labour Standards

If your score is between 1 - 18

This score is unbelievable! Does your employer know we live in the 21st century? Ask for your rights. If there is a union active in your company or branch of industry, join it and appeal for help.

If your score is between 19 - 38

As you can see, there is ample room for improvement. But please don't tackle all these issues at once. Start where it hurts most. In the meantime, notify your union or WageIndicator about your situation, so they may help to improve it. When sending an email to us, please be specific about your complaint and if possible name your employer as well. Also, try and find out if your company officially adheres to a code known as Corporate Social Responsibility. If they do, they should live up to at least ILO standards. If they don't adhere to such a code yet, they should. Many companies do by now. You may bring this up.

If your score is between 39 - 49

You're pretty much out of the danger zone. Your employer adheres to most of the existing labour laws and regulations. But there is always room for improvement. So next time you talk to management about your work conditions, prepare well and consult this DecentWorkCheck as a checklist.

01/13 Work & Wages

Regulations on work and wages:

Labour Law (No. 14 of 2004)

Minimum Wage

No statutory provision could be located related to minimum wage. Wages are determined by individual employment contract. If wage is not specified in the employment contract, the worker is entitled to the wage specified in the enterprise work regulations. In the absence of these, worker is entitled to a wage equivalent to the wage specified for work of a similar type in the establishment and otherwise in accordance with the custom applicable to the profession in the place of performance of the work. In the absence of custom, a court order may specify wages in accordance with the requirements of justice.

For more information on this, please refer to the section on minimum wages

Regular Pay

Labour law differentiates between the "basic wage" and the "wage". Basic wage is defined by the law as the rate of payment for the work done by the worker in a certain period of time or on the basis of piece or production and includes periodic increment. Wage is defined as a basic wage plus all increments, allowances and bonuses paid to the worker in return for or in respect of work of whatever kind and means of calculation. Employers are required to pay workers their wages and other entitlements in legal tender, i.e., Qatari Rial, personally during working hours, at the workplace. Alternatively, wages may be paid into the worker's bank account or to a representative, on worker's written consent.

Workers whose wages are calculated on annual or monthly basis are paid at least once a month. For all others, wages are paid on fortnightly basis. The worker must sign to confirm receipt of the remuneration, except in case of bank transfer, in worker's payroll register or on a pay-slip provided by the employer. This register or pay-slip must provide details related to the wage.

The employer who violates any of the above mentioned provisions is sentenced to a maximum imprisonment of one month, or to a fine ranging two thousand to six thousand Riyals or both.

Employer cannot oblige workers to purchase goods produced by them or buy goods from some specified sources. An employer cannot withhold a worker's wages except by a judicial decision unless the worker and employer have agreed otherwise.

DECENTWORKCHECK.ORG

Employer may not charge any interest on the loan. The total deductions from a worker's wages must not exceed 10% of the wage. To pay alimony or debts owed to third parties, attachment of wages must not exceed 35% of the worker's remuneration. If a worker has to pay compensation for damage or material loss he may have caused his employer by reason of shortcoming or negligence, the wage deduction cannot exceed 7 days of his basic wage per month. The sum total of deduction must not exceed 50% of the worker's wage.

A worker must be paid his outstanding wages/dues on the day following termination of contract (irrespective of whether termination is on worker or employer initiative). If a worker resigns without a notice period, the employer must pay the remaining dues within seven days after the employee leaves employment.

02/13 CompensationRegulations on compensation:

Labour Law (No. 14 of 2004)

Overtime Compensation

The normal working hours are 8 hours a day and 48 hours a week. During the month of Ramadan, the working hours are reduced and daily and weekly limit of 6 hours and 36 hours respectively is observed. Young workers may not be retained in the workplace for more than 7 continuous hours. Normal working hours for young workers are 6 hours per day. These are reduced to 4 hours per day in the month of Ramadan.

These statutory limits on normal working hours do not apply to employees performing security or cleaning work, or preparatory and complementary work that must be performed before or after normal working hours. Government is empowered to set maximum working hours for these employees, and for any other categories of employee, by order, but no such order could be located.

Workers should not work for more than 5 consecutive hours, interval of 1-3 hours must be given for prayers, rest and taking meals. The rest interval is independent of normal working hours and thus is not counted in working hours. The time spent by the worker in travelling to and from the place of work and residence of the worker do not form part of the working hours.

Total working hours, inclusive of overtime, must not exceed 10 hours per day except when overtime work is necessary for the prevention of gross loss or dangerous accident or for the repair or alleviation of the consequences of the said loss or accident. The general daily and weekly hour limit is not applicable to the persons occupying responsible positions.

Employer pays up to 25% of the additional basic wage as compensation of hours of overtime work. Thus the overtime wages are 125% of the normal wage rate. These provisions are not applicable on workers occupying responsible positions.

Night Work Compensation

Night work is the work performed between 21:00 to 06:00.

Night worker is entitled to an allowance equivalent to 50% of his basic wages for hours of night work (night premium) except the shift workers. Thus, the night wages are 150% of the normal wage rate.

Night time work is prohibited for the young workers. These provisions are not applicable on workers occupying responsible positions.

Compensatory Holidays / Rest Days

Workers may be required to work on weekly rest days and public holidays to increase production or to provide public services and in the event of a disaster or to prevent a disaster, or to maintain work-related or industrial equipment or in the public interest.

Workers must be given compensatory rest for working on weekly rest days, official holidays and days of leave. Workers are not allowed to work for two consecutive rest days (Friday) except the shift workers. These provisions are not applicable on workers occupying responsible positions.

Weekend / Public Holiday Work Compensation

Workers may be required to work on weekly rest days and public holidays to increase production or to provide public services and in the event of a disaster or to prevent a disaster, or to maintain work-related or industrial equipment or in the public interest.

Premium compensation for the work done on weekends and public holidays is equivalent to at least 150% of the basic wage. These provisions are not applicable on workers occupying responsible positions.

03/13 Annual Leave & HolidaysRegulations on annual leave and holidays:

Labour Law (No. 14 of 2004)

Paid Vacation / Annual Leave

Worker who has completed one year of service with the employer is entitled to paid annual leaves of 3 weeks (18 working days). Three-week annual leave is available for workers with one to five years of service. The annual leave is increased to 4 weeks for five or more years of service.

Worker is entitled to receive his/her basic wage during annual leave. Employer must pay all dues and wages for work done in addition to the wage for the period of annual leave prior to the starting of annual leave. Employment is secure during annual leaves.

Labour law allows splitting of annual leave. Annual leaves are usually taken in a single block but employer may divide them in to two parts after the worker's consent. According to the requirement of work, employer decides the date of annual leave.

Workers cannot waive their annual leave entitlement; instead they can request the employer to carry over half of their annual leaves to the following year.

On termination, worker receives payment in lieu of annual leaves accrued but not taken.

Pay on Public Holidays

Public holidays are paid rest days of religious or memorial nature. Qatar has ten such holidays. These are Eid al Adha/Feast of Sacrifice (3 days), Eid al Fitr/Feast of the Breaking of Fast (3 days), Independence Day (December December) and 3 working days to be specified by the employer. Dates of the Eid holidays are subject to sighting of moon and thus are liable to change.

Public holidays are paid days and if a worker is required to work on a public holiday, he is entitled to compensatory rest day along with 150% of the basic wage as premium compensation.

Source: §75 & 78 of the Labour Law (No. 14 of 2004)

Weekly Rest Days

Labour law provides for a weekly rest day. Since the weekly hours of work are distributed over six working days, workers are entitled to one day (24 hours) of weekly paid rest which is Friday except for the shift workers.

Regulations on employment security:

Labour Law (No. 14 of 2004)

Law On the Entry, Exit, and Residency of Foreign Nationals (No. 21 of 2015)

Written Employment Particulars

Employment contracts are regulated under the Labour Law. Service contract is an agreement between an employer and worker, whether of a definite or indefinite duration, whereby the worker undertakes to perform a certain work for the employer, under his direction or supervision, in return for a wage. Labour Law requires employment contracts to be in writing. A written employment contract is drawn up in three copies (signed by all the parties), one copy each for the worker, the employer and the Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs for authentication. In the absence of written contracts, an employee has to establish his rights through any admissible evidence.

An employment contract must specify the following: employer and workplace details; the name, qualifications, nationality, profession and residence of the worker and the proof necessary for his identification; the date of conclusion of the contract; the nature and type of the work and place of contracting; the date of commencement of the work; the period of the contract (if the contract is of a definite duration); the agreed wage and the method and date of the payment thereof.

The contract must be written in Arabic. If necessary, translation of the contract in other language is attached to the contract written in Arabic. In case of any discrepancy, Arabic text prevails.

In order to be employed anywhere in Qatar (including the Qatar Financial Centre), foreign nationals are required to have a valid residency visa that permits the holder to work.

The 2009 sponsorship law gave employers excessive control over workers. Workers were allowed to change jobs with the permission of their current employer, who had to issue a “no objection certificate”. If workers left their sponsor for any reason or work for another employer, it was considered criminal offence and the workers were considered to have “absconded” or to be “runaways”. In order to leave the country, workers were required to get the permission of their employer in the form of an “exit permit”.

Law No. 21 of 2015 regulating the entry, exit and residency of expatriates came into force on 13 December 2016. The new law covers the conditions for entry to and departure of expatriates from Qatar. It regulates their recruitment (§17-20), sets the conditions for changing employers (§21-23), and sets out the conditions for their deportation and repatriation (§24-28). The new law enables foreign workers wishing to leave Qatar to apply to the Ministry of Interior for permission to do so, up to 72 hours in advance. If an employer objects to this, both sides can approach a grievance committee (exit permit petitions committee), which is to be set up under the law to look into such complaints. The new law obliges an employer to inform the Ministry 3 days prior to an employee exiting Qatar. With the approval of employer, employee may exit Qatar immediately. In case of emergency, the worker can leave immediately after notifying the employer and by approval of the exit permit petitions committee which must take its decision on the request within three working days.

A sponsored employee was earlier prohibited from working for another employer without a special permission, i.e., Non Objection Certificate. And with such NOC, a worker had to leave the country for a minimum of two years before returning to Qatar to work for another employer. Under the new law, a worker can switch job to another at the end of fixed term contract. In the case of indefinite term contracts, worker may change job/employer after five years of service under the current contract after the approval of employer, Ministry of Interior and Ministry of Labour & Social Affairs. In the event of recruiter's death or dissolution of employer, relevant authorities may authorize the change of employer. The Minister or his representative may authorize the transfer of a foreign national laborer who is not subject to the referenced Labor Law to another employer if proven that the Recruiter was abusive, or if required by the general welfare.

The new law requires the employer to passport or travel document to the worker on completion of procedures for issuance or renewal of his/her residence permit. Employer can withhold passport only if the expatriate worker requests his/her employer in writing to hold onto the passport. The employer is required to return the passport upon the expatriate worker's request. The new law also raised the penalty for employers who confiscate workers' passports from QR10,000 (under 2009 law) to QR25,000.

Fixed Term Contracts

Employment contract can be for a fixed term or indefinite term. Fixed term contracts are effective. Duration of this contract is five years maximum, but may be renewed for the same duration for unlimited number of times to the initial contract.

Renewed period is the extension of the original period and the worker's service for the employer is calculated from the start of the original contract. If workers continue working after expiry of the contract and without renewal of contract, then the contract is considered to be an indefinite term contract on same terms and conditions as the original fixed term contract.

If the contract is based on performance of a particular task, it terminates on completion of that task. Employment regulations are same for both the fixed term contracts and the indefinite term contracts.

DECENTWORKCHECK.ORG

Probation Period

After signing a contract of employment, a worker may be subjected to a period of probation of maximum six months. The probation period must be clearly specified in the employment contract. Employer is prohibited to place a worker on probation more than once for the same job (no possibility for renewal).

An employer may terminate an employment contract with a notice period of 3 days if a worker fails to prove his competence for job during this probationary period.

Source: §39 of the Labour Law (No. 14 of 2004)

Notice Requirement

Termination of employment contract is regulated under the provisions of Labour Law. Employment may be terminated with or without notice. Notice period for the worker employed on monthly or annual basis ranges from one month (for less than five years of service) to two months (for more than five years of service). For other workers, notice period is one week (for less than one year of service), two weeks (for one to five years of service) and one month (for five or more years of service).

Notice period must be given in writing and workers are entitled to their full wages during notice period if they perform all their duties.

A contract terminating party (employer or employee) has to pay gross wages for the notice period or part remaining thereof in lieu of notice if a contract is terminated without complete observation of notice period. An employer cannot terminate a worker on leave or public holiday and any such notice commences on the completion of such leave or holiday.

During notice period, Qatari nationals are allowed a reasonable free time from work to register for new employment with the Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs. Worker must inform the employer if he/she finds a new job, but should remain in employment till the end of the notice period.

Employer can terminate the employment contract during probation by giving notice period of 3 days. If worker terminates the contract during probation, the normal minimum statutory notice period applies.

Employers are required to maintain a register where the names of the workers whose services have been terminated, the dates and causes of the termination and the entitlements paid to them or to their heirs are entered.

Severance Pay

On the termination of employment, a worker who has completed one or more years of service is entitled to receive severance pay of at least three-week basic pay as at the time of termination for each year of service. The entitlement is calculated pro rata for less than one year of service, once the necessary condition of one year of service has already been met.

The employer may deduct the amount due to him by the worker from the severance pay. The worker may choose to receive either the severance pays or the benefit under the pension scheme, whichever benefits him more.

All the Qatar nationals and foreign nationals working in Qatar are eligible to receive severance pay on termination of employment. The employer pays the wages and other sums to the worker within a day of the contract termination. In case the worker has abandoned the work without giving the notification, the employer pays the wage and other sums to which the worker is entitled within a period of seven days from the date of the worker abandoning the work.

Free Medical Care

No provision could be located in law regarding free medical care for pregnant workers.

No Harmful Work

Women, in general are prohibited from being employed in dangerous or arduous work, work detrimental to their health, morals or other works to be specified by a Decision of the Minister.

Source: §94 of the Labour Law (No. 14 of 2004)

Maternity Leave

Women workers are entitled to maternity leave with full pay for 50 days, to cover pre and post maternity period. The compulsory leave is at least 35 days after childbirth.

To avail maternity leave, worker must have completed at least one year of service with the employer and provide a medical certificate issued by a licensed physician stating the probable date of delivery.

The female worker may be granted a complementary leave from her annual leave if the remaining period of the leave after delivery is less than thirty days. Otherwise the complementary period is deemed to be a leave without pay.

If the medical condition of the female worker prevents her from resuming her work after expiry of her maternity leave, the female worker is granted leave without pay provided that the period of her absence does not exceed sixty consecutive or interrupted days. She must also provide a medical certificate of her medical condition issued by a licensed physician.

Maternity leave is independent of a worker's entitlement to other leave.

Employer Cares

An employer is required to protect the health and safety of workers at the workplace in accordance with the provisions of Labour Law. Workers have the right to the type of work and working environment which is safe and without risk to health.

Employers have to ensure the health and safety of worker from injury to their health and dangers of work, from any accident or fire, and from any defect or breakdown in machinery or equipment. These precautionary measures are provided free of cost by the employer.

Employer must inform the employee on recruitment regarding the risk involved and preventive measures to be taken. Written health and safety measures should be displayed conspicuously at the workplace. Employer must comply with the rules issued by the competent authorities regarding provision of hygiene, good ventilation, suitable lighting, drinking water, proper cleaning and drainage system.

There must be at least one first-aid box per 25 employees, assigned to the care of an employee trained in administering first aid. An employer must employ a full time nurse in an establishment with more than 100 employees and provide a clinic staffed by a doctor and a nurse in case of more than 500 employees.

Employer must also provide suitable transport or accommodation or both, drinking water and food to the workers living in remote locations where they lack normal transport links.

Employee must use the safety equipments with care and act according to the prescribed instructions to preserve his health and protect himself from getting injured. Employee must not involve in any action that tends to obstruct implementation of the instructions or the misuse or causing of damage or loss to the means provided for the protection, safety and health of other employees.

Labour Inspection System

The Work Inspection Authority within the Ministry of Labour is responsible for monitoring and enforcing the application of employment legislation, including health and safety provisions.

The labour inspectors are empowered to enter workplaces during working hours, without previous notification; inspect registers, books, files and any other documents related to employees to ensure their compliance with the applicable legislation, and to detect any breaches of the legislation; obtain samples of materials, and inspect machinery and facilities to ensure the availability of sufficient and effective means for protecting employees from health and safety risks; and question the employer or its representative and employees, individually or in the presence of witnesses, about any matters related to the implementation of employment legislation.

The employer or its representative must facilitate the work of inspectors by providing them with correct information, and attend meetings whenever required to do so by an inspector.

DECENTWORKCHECK.ORG

In the case of breach of health and safety legislation, inspectors, depending on the circumstances, advise and provide guidance to the employer about how to prevent the breach concerned; or issue a notification to the employer, requiring it to rectify the violation within a specified time limit; or report the violation to the Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs, which may take appropriate legal action.

The Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs may order the partial or total closure of a workplace, or to suspend the use of one or more machines if the employer fails to take the precautionary measures required by health and safety legislation, or if there is an imminent danger to employees' health or safety, until the causes of the danger cease to exist. In such cases, the employer must pay the employees concerned their full remuneration during the period of closure or suspension.

Any violations of the mandatory provisions of the Labour Law or any regulations or orders issued under the Labour Law make the offender liable to a penalty, which may be a fine and/or imprisonment, depending on the circumstances. The same penalties apply to any person who obstructs or prevents any official from performing his or her duties to inspect and to enforce the statutory provisions.

Regarding criminal liability, criminal proceedings may be filed against the general manager of a company and against the employer if the court finds that circumstances give rise to the belief that the employer or general manager could not have been unaware of the facts constituting the health and safety violation.

The Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs, as far as possible, will not institute criminal proceedings before the advice, guidance and warning procedure has been exhausted.

Following an accident, if a police report concludes that one of the employer's personnel or managers was at fault or negligent, the staff member or manager may face prosecution in a criminal court for the act or omission that has been deemed to amount to a crime.

Disability / Work Injury Benefit

Law defines work injury as suffering by the worker from any of the occupational diseases listed in the law or any injury resulting from an accident happening to the worker during the performance of his work or by reason thereof or on his way to or back from his work provided that the journey to and from the work is made without any break lingering, or diversion from the normal route.

Work injuries are can lead to the following four situations: (i) permanent total incapacity (ii) permanent partial incapacity (iii) temporary incapacity and (iv) fatal injury leading to death of a worker.

In case of work injury, employer pays full cost of medical treatment appropriate to the worker's condition. Worker is entitled to receive his full wage during the treatment or for six months, whichever in less. If the treatment period exceeds six months, worker receive half of his pay until the recovery or disability proved to be permanent or death, whichever is less.

If the worker has suffered permanent total disability as a result of an occupational injury or disease, the employer must pay the employee lump-sum compensation; set in accordance with the provisions of Shari'a law (the sum is currently QAR 200,000). If the employee dies as a result of an occupational injury or disease, the same sum is payable to his or her heirs.

If the employee has suffered a permanent partial disability as a result of an occupational injury or disease, the employer must pay the employee lump-sum compensation. The amount is set as a percentage of the full amount payable for permanent total disability, depending on the severity of the disability.

The employer must pay the compensation within 15 days from the date the disability was confirmed or death occurred.

Labour Law (No. 14 of 2004)

Law No 24 of 2002 on Retirement and Pensions (implemented in 2003)

The extension of protection to Gulf Cooperation Council citizens working abroad 2007

Pension Rights

Law provides for both full pension as well as early pension. The qualifying condition for old age pension is reaching the age of 60 years (men) or age of 55 years (women) with at least 15 years of paid contributions. For early pension, a worker must have reached the age of 40 years (both men and women) with at least 15 years of paid contributions.

The amount of old-age pension and early old age pension is 5% of the insured worker's average wage in the last 5 years of employment. The amount of minimum pension is 75% of the insured worker's gross monthly income and maximum pension is 100% of the insured worker's gross monthly income. The early pension reduction ranges from 2% to 2.5% for each year the pension is taken before the normal retirement age.

In case insured person does not meet the qualifying condition for an old-age pension, he/she is entitled to old-age settlement. It is paid as a lump sum of the insured worker's contributions.

Dependents' / Survivors' Benefit

The surviving family members are entitled to a survivors' pension if the deceased person was in covered employment or was a pensioner at the time of death. In case the insured person does not meet the qualifying conditions of the survivor pension, survivor settlement is paid to the surviving family.

Survivors that are eligible for the pension include widow(er), children, parents and siblings. The widow(er) with no children is entitled to receive 75% of the old-age or disability pension the deceased received or was eligible to receive (100% is split equally if there is more than one widow). The widow(er) with one or more children is entitled to receive 33.3% (50% is split equally if there is more than one widow).

Single eligible orphan is entitled to receive 50% of the old-age or disability pension the deceased received or was eligible to receive, 66.7% is paid for more than one orphan (50% for more than one orphan and more than one widow); 75% is paid for a full orphan (100% is split equally if there is more than one full orphan).

Other eligible survivors are entitled to receive 16.7% to 50% of the old-age or disability pension the deceased received or was eligible to receive.

Regulations on trade unions:

Permanent Constitution of the State of Qatar 2004

Labour Law (No. 14 of 2004)

Freedom to Join and Form a Union

The constitution guarantees Qatari citizens the right to establish associations. Labour law also permits Qatari citizens, the formation and operation of trade union. Foreign nationals are not permitted to form or join unions.

If at least 100 Qatari national employees are working in an establishment, they can form a "worker's committee". Only one such committee is permitted in each establishment. Worker's committees of similar or connected establishments are entitled to form "general committee". Various general committees may form a General Union of Qatari Workers.

Government determines the terms, procedure of formation, and issues related to their membership and internal operation of the worker's organisations. These organisations must comply with the rules set out by the Government, related to the membership, elections, financing, membership fees and funds.

Role of these organisations is to take into account the interests of their members, protect members' rights and represent them in all matters related to work. Workers' organisations are prohibited from participating in various acts, including political or religious activities and the publication or distribution of material offensive to the Qatari state. The Government may dissolve a workers' organisation if it engages in prohibited acts or other acts outside the purposes for which it was established.

Source: §45 of the Permanent Constitution of the State of Qatar 2004; §116-119 of the Labour Law (No. 14 of 2004)

Freedom of Collective Bargaining

Labour law allows the formation of joint committee in an establishment with thirty or more workers, with representatives of both employers and workers. Members of the committee are four if there are 200 or more workers in an establishment, six if the workers are more than 200 or less than 500 members and eight if the workers are 500 or more. The Minister issues a decision regulating the conditions and procedures of election. The joint committee deal with the matters related to regulation of work, the means of increasing and developing the production and enhancing the productivity, the training programmes of the workers, the means of protection from dangers and the improvement of the standards of compliance with the rules of safety and occupational health, the development of the general culture of the workers, the development of the social services in the establishment and settlement of individual and collective disputes in the establishment.

DECENTWORKCHECK.ORG

The committee submits its recommendations on these matters to the employer to consider whether they can be implemented.

The employers and workers have the right to conduct collective negotiation and conclude joint agreements on all matters related to the work. The Minister issues a decision on the regulation of the rules and procedures of collective negotiation and the method of representation of the parties therein and the rules regulating the joint agreements as to conclude, contents, scope, the means of acceding them, the duration and interpretation thereof and the disputes which may arise from its implementation.

If any collective labour dispute arises between the employer and some or all of his workers, the two parties should try to settle it between themselves and if there is a joint committee in the establishment, the dispute is referred to it for settlement. If the two parties fail, labour department settle the dispute through its mediation.

If the mediation of the department fails to settle the dispute within fifteen days, the department submits the dispute to the conciliation committee for its decision. The committee issues its decision within a week, otherwise refer to the arbitration committee within fifteen days after the date of the decision. An award made by the arbitration committee is binding on both parties to the dispute.

Minimum wage: Convention 131 (1970)

Regular pay & wage protection: Conventions 95 (1949) and 117(1962)

Qatar has not ratified any of the above mentioned Conventions.

Minimum wage

The minimum wage must cover the living expenses of the employee and his/her family members. Moreover, it must relate reasonably to the general level of wages earned and the living standard of other social groups.

Regular Pay

Wages must be paid regularly on a daily, weekly, fortnightly or monthly basis.

02/13 Compensation

ILO Conventions on Compensation

Compensation overtime: Convention 01 (1919); Night work: Convention 171 (1990)

Qatar has not ratified the Conventions 01 & 171.

Overtime Compensation

Working overtime is to be avoided. Whenever it is unavoidable, extra compensation is at stake - minimally the basic hourly wage plus all additional benefits you are entitled to. In accordance with ILO Convention 1, overtime pay rate should not be less than one and a quarter times (125%) the regular rate.

Night Work Compensation

Night work means all work which is performed during a period of not less than seven (07) consecutive hours, including the interval from midnight to 5 a.m. A night worker is a worker whose work requires performance of a substantial number of hours of night work which exceeds a specified limit (at least 3 hours). Convention 171 requires that night workers be compensated with reduced working time or higher pay or similar benefits. Similar provisions are found in the Night Work Recommendation No. 178 of 1990.

Compensatory Holidays/Rest Days

If you have to work on a national/religious holiday or a weekly rest day, you should be entitled to compensation. Not necessarily in the same week, provided that the right to a paid compensation is not.

Weekend/Public Holiday work Compensation

If you have to work during the weekend, you should thereby acquire the right to a rest period of 24 uninterrupted hours instead. Not necessarily in the weekend, but at least in the course of the following week. Similarly, if you have to work on a public holiday, you must be given a compensatory holiday. A higher rate of pay for working on a public holiday or a weekly rest day does not take your right to a holiday/ rest.

Qatar has not ratified any of the above mentioned Conventions.

Paid Vacation/Annual Leave

An employee is entitled to at least 21 consecutive paid annual leave. National and religious holidays are not included. Collective agreements must provide at least one day of annual leave on full remuneration for every 17 days on which the employee worked or was entitled to be paid.

Pay on Public Holidays

You should be entitled to paid leave during national and officially recognized public holidays.

Weekly Rest Day

Workers should enjoy a rest period of at least twenty-four consecutive hours in every 7 day period, i.e., a week

04/13 Employment SecurityILO Conventions on employment termination

Convention 158 (1982) on employment termination

Qatar has not ratified the Convention 158.

The questions under this section measure the security or even flexibility or precariousness of an employment relationship. Although these are not clearly mentioned in a single convention (severance pay and notice requirement are provided in the Termination of Employment Convention No. 158) however, the best practices in the field require that employees be provided with a written contract of employment; workers on fixed term contracts should not be hired for tasks of permanent nature; a reasonable probation period (ideally lower than or equal to 6 months) may be followed to assess the suitability of an employee; a period of notice must be specified in an employment contract before severing the employment relationship; and workers be paid severance allowance on termination of employment relationship.

Written Employment Particulars

A contract of employment may be oral or written however workers should be provided with a written statement of employment at the start of their employment.

Fixed Term Contracts

Fixed Term Contract workers must not be hired for permanent tasks as it leads to precarious employment.

Probation Period

A reasonable probation period must be provided to a worker to learn new skills. A newly hired employee may be fired during probation period without any negative consequences.

Notice Requirement

A reasonable notice period, depending on the length of service of an employee, may be required before an employer may sever the employment relationship.

Severance Pay

Employers may be required to pay a severance allowance on termination of employment (due to redundancy or any other reason except for lack of capacity or misconduct).

Parental Leave

The accompanying recommendation (No. 165) to ILO Convention on Family Responsibilities provides for parental leave as an option available to either parent to take long leave of absence (paid or unpaid) without resigning from work. Parental leave is usually taken once the maternity and paternity leave have been exhausted. For working parents, laws may define the portion of parental leave that has to be compulsorily taken by fathers or mothers.

Flexible Work Option for Parents / Work-Life Balance

Recommendation 165 asks for looking into measures for improving general working conditions through flexible work arrangements.

06/13 Maternity and WorkILO Conventions on maternity and work

An earlier Convention (103 from 1952) prescribed at least 12 weeks maternity leave, 6 weeks before and 6 weeks after. However, a later convention (No. 183 from year 2000) requires that maternity leave be at least 14 weeks of which a period of six weeks compulsory leave should be after childbirth.

Qatar has not ratified the Conventions 103 & 183.

Free medical care

During pregnancy and maternity leave, you should be entitled to medical and midwife care without any additional cost.

No harmful work

During pregnancy and while breastfeeding, you should be exempt from work that might bring harm to you or your baby.

Maternity leave

Your maternity leave should last at least 14 weeks.

Income

Qatar has not ratified the Conventions 102, 121 & 130.

Income/Paid Sick Leave

Your rights to work and income should be protected when illness strikes. The national labour law may provide that sickness benefit may not be paid during the first 3 days of your absence. Minimally you should be entitled to an income during first 6 months of illness. This income should be at least 45 per cent of the minimum wage. (Countries are free to opt for a system which guarantees 60 per cent of the last wages during the first 6 months of illness or even during the first year). You should be entitled to paid sick leave.

Medical Care

During illness, you should be entitled to medical care without any additional cost. Employees and their family members should have access to the necessary minimal medical care at an affordable cost.

Job security

During the first 6 months of your illness, you should not be fired.

Disability/Work Injury Benefit

Whenever you are disabled due to an occupational disease or accident, you ought to receive a higher benefit. In the case of temporary or total incapacity/disability, a worker may at least be provided 50% of his average wage while in the case of fatal injury, the survivors may be provided with 40% of the deceased worker's average wage in periodical payments.

Qatar has ratified the Convention 111 only.

Equal Pay

At workplaces equal pay for men and women for work of equal value is a must, regardless of marital status. Pay inequality based on race, colour, sex, religion, political opinion, national extraction/place of birth or social origin is also forbidden. A transparent remuneration system and the clear matching of pay and position should be in place and to help prevent wage discrimination.

Sexual Harassment

Not clearly provided in ILO Conventions. However, sexual intimidation/harassment is gender discrimination.

Non-Discrimination

Your employer can't discriminate against you on in any aspect of employment (appointment, promotion, training and transfer) on the basis of union membership or participation in union activities, filing of a complaint against an employer, race, colour, sex, marital status, family responsibilities, pregnancy, religion, political opinion, national extraction or social origin, temporary absence due to illness, age, trade union membership, disability/HIV-AIDS, or absence from work during maternity leave. (Conventions 111, 156, 158, 159 and 183)

Equal Choice of Profession

People have the right to work and there can't be occupational segregation on the basis of gender.

11/13 Minors & Youth

ILO Conventions on Minors & Youth

Minimum Age: Convention 138 (1973)

Worst Forms of Child labour: Convention 182 (1999)

Qatar has ratified both the Conventions 138 & 182.

Minimum Age for Employment

At workplaces, children may not be forced to perform work that could harm their health and hampers their physical and mental development.

All children should be able to attend school. Once this is safeguarded, there is no objection against children performing light jobs between the ages of 12 and 14. The general minimum age is 15 years however developing countries may set this at 14 years. The minimum age for hazardous work, work that is likely to jeopardize the health, safety or morals of young persons, is 18 years. It can also be set at a lower level of 16 years under certain circumstances

Minimum Age for Hazardous Work

Children should not be employed in a work that is likely to harm the health, safety or morals of children. It is considered one of the worst forms of child labour. The minimum age for such hazardous work is 18 years.

12/13 Forced Labour

ILO Conventions on Forced/Bonded labour

Forced labour: Conventions 29 (1930)

Abolition of Forced labour: Conventions 105 (1957)

Forced labour is the work one has to perform under threat of punishment: forfeit of wages, dismissal, harassment or violence, even corporal punishment. Forced labour means violation of human rights.

Qatar has ratified both the Conventions 29 & 105.

Prohibition on Forced and Compulsory labour

Except for certain exceptions, forced or compulsory labour (exacted under the threat of punishment and for which you may not have offered voluntarily) is prohibited.

Freedom to change jobs and Right to quit

Employers have to allow you to look for work elsewhere. If you do, you should not be shortened on wages or threatened with dismissal. (In the reverse cases, international law considers this as forced labour).

Inhumane Working Conditions

If the total working hours, inclusive of overtime exceed 56 hours per week, the worker is considered to be working under inhumane working conditions.

13/13 Trade UnionILO Conventions on Trade Union Rights

Freedom of association and protection of the right to organize: Convention 87 (1948)

Right to Organize and Collective Bargaining: Convention 98 (1949)

Qatar has not ratified both the Conventions 87 & 98.

Freedom to join and form a union

Freedom of association means freedom to join a trade union. This is part of the fundamental human rights. Employees may not be put at a disadvantage when they are active in the trade union outside working hours. The list of exclusions for sectors of economic activity and workers in an organization should be short.

Freedom of Collective Bargaining

Trade unions are entitled to negotiate with employers on term of employment without hindrance. The freedom of a trade union to negotiate with employers to try and conclude collective agreements is protected. (The ILO has a special procedure for handling complaints from unions about violation of this principle).

Right to Strike

Workers have the right to strike in order to defend their social and economic interests. It is incidental and corollary to the right to organize provided in ILO convention 87.

About Decent Work and Decent Work Check

Compare your own situation with the international labour standards and how they are applied in Qatar. At the end of the checklist you will see how things stand for you. You may be better off than what the international standards prescribe, but you should not be worse off. Behind every answer, you can find a short explanation of what your rights are; nationally and internationally. So you see right away if you can improve your situation.

The Decent Work Check makes the pretty abstract Conventions and legal texts tangible. Because, in the end, you want to know what your rights on the job mean in practice, what you may claim and what protection you are entitled to in case something unexpectedly does go wrong. The Decent Work Check employs double comparison system. It first compares national laws with international labour standards and gives a score to the national situation (happy or sad face). It allows workers to compare their real situation with national regulations in the country. Workers then compare their own score both at national and international levels. The Decent Work Check is based on de jure labour provisions, as found in the labour legislation. The real practice is informed by the employees themselves. This Check is different from other indices like World Bank's Doing Business Indicators or even ISSA's Social Security Programs throughout the World as it is not only descriptive in nature (bereft of any subjective opinions) but also that it covers a lot of different variables. The Revised Decent Work Check is also designed while taking into account upcoming Decent Work Indicators. While Decent Work Indicators focus more on statistics, our priority is informing workers about their rights through this Decent Work Check. Decent Work Check is useful both for employees and employers. It gives them knowledge, which is the first step towards any improvement. It informs employees of their rights at the workplace while simultaneously enlightening employers about their obligations. Decent Work Check is also useful for researchers, labour rights organizations conducting surveys on the situation of rights at work and general public wanting to know more about the world of work.

WageIndicator teams, around the world, have found out that workers, small employers and labour inspectors don't even know the labour law.

When you are informed - being a workers, self-employed, employee, employer, policy maker, labour inspector - there is a greater possibility that you ask for your rights (as a worker), you comply with rules (as an employer) and you strive to enforce these (as a labour inspector). As soon as you complete the DecentWorkCheck, you see which issues need improvement in your work life.

This is exactly the strategy chosen in the debates in many WageIndicator countries. In the debates with roughly 20-30 people around the table from all sides, the decent Work Check has soon the effect of a mini social dialogue. The people who run the dialogue are equally well informed.

The international labour standards are laid down in ILO-Conventions. ILO is the specialised body of the United Nations working on labour issues and was founded in 1919. In the ILO, negotiations are always going on between governments of the member states, national trade unions and employer's associations regarding work related issues like rights at work and social protection. These negotiations may take years, but eventually lead to so called Conventions or Recommendations. In Conventions, minimum standards are laid down. Conventions are not the law, but the intention is that member states subscribe to the standard in question. The proper way to do that is to have these Conventions ratified by parliament and then make national laws (Some countries may follow the system of self-executing treaties). National law can be enforced. ILO-Conventions are usually accompanied by Recommendations on how to implement the standards.

Since 1999, the ILO works according to the so called Decent Work Agenda. In the meantime, the Decent Work Agenda has been widely accepted as an important strategy to fight poverty and foster development. The Agenda has been incorporated in the Millennium Development Goals of the United Nations. In short, the idea behind Decent Work is first of all an income which allows the working individual a good life. Moreover, at work, everybody has an equal chance to develop themselves; working conditions are safe; there is no instance of child and forced/bonded labour; and discrimination does not occur. Trade unions are allowed a real say in work related matters and the state has created a social safety net for all especially for the sick, weak, elderly and expecting women.
